

The Journal of Blacks in Higher Education

Shenandoah University Selects a New Dean of Its Business School

January 19, 2012

Miles K. Davis has been selected as the new dean of the Harry F. Byrd Jr. School of Business at Shenandoah University in Winchester, Virginia. The appointment is effective on July 1.

Dr. Davis is an associate professor of management at the university and the founding director of the business school's Institute for Entrepreneurship.

Professor Davis is a graduate of Duquesne University in Pittsburgh. He holds a master's degree in human resources development from Bowie State University in Maryland and a doctorate in organization behavior and management from George Washington University.