

September 6, 2013

dt ogilvie, dean of the Saunders College of Business at Rochester Institute of Technology, has been inducted into The PhD Project Hall of Fame.

The PhD Project works to increase diversity in management.

In a news release, ogilvie said the number of minority faculty members at U.S. business schools has more than quadrupled since The PhD Project began in 1994.

She and two other inductees will be honored at the organization's annual conference in November.