- For all other employees and other qualifications, Travelers will pay for the full costs and will recoup 50 percent of the total from the employee by monthly deduction from salary over a defined period, usually three or six months. Travelers will support one further attempt in the event of an exam failure, but subsequent retakes (including updated course books) will be at the expense of the employee.
- The amount of study leave will depend upon the nature of your studies and must be approved by your line manager.
- A separate policy applies to actuarial studies. Details will be provided to the appropriate employees.
