Ten Tips For A Successful Virtual Interview

Virtual interviews are usually a preliminary first step that could lead to an in-person interview. The good news is that if you have great communication skills, your virtual interview could turn into your “official” interview!

1. Be Confident
You got this! You’re just as powerful through the computer as you are in person. Your confidence can be heard just as much as it’s seen. Also, remember to smile.

2. Do Your Research
The upside to not meeting in person is that you have the capability to have notes right in front of you at all times.

3. Look The Part
When you look good, you feel good! When you dress in your interview attire, it’ll help prepare you mentally.

4. Find A Quiet Space
Background noise could cause distractions for you and the recruiter, so it’s important to choose a location where there’s minimal noise to maximize your interview.

5. Take Notes
Jotting down the recruiter’s name and other information is a great way to stay organized.

6. Ask About Their Experience
In most cases, your recruiter is employed with the company. If you have questions, they’re a great resource to give you an inside scoop on the organization.

7. Be Concise
Your interview will probably have a time limit, so it’s important to speak clearly and be concise. Try to avoid rambling.

8. Listen
After each question, it’s okay to take a second to breathe and collect your thoughts. Listening to the recruiter’s tone will give you great insight into how the interview is going.

9. Speak Slowly
Nerves will cause you to speak fast. Stay calm and speak slower than you usually would. This allows you to articulate your answers. Even if you think you’re speaking slow, it probably sounds normal.

10. Ask Next Steps
It’s always a good idea to ask for next steps. Even if it’s just a preliminary interview, it’s important for you to know what to expect and what the process is.

Virtual interviews can feel intimidating, but if you do your research and prepare, you’ll have the confidence to know you’ve made a great impression!
